PREPARATION METHOD

For the sauce, braise the shallot in the olive oil with the garlic puree, allowing it to brown lightly. Add the peeled tomatoes, WOKchilli and red chilli puree and heat thoroughly. Puree the mixture lightly, but keep the coarse texture. Season with salt, pepper and the chimichurri.

For more piquancy, add a little cayenne pepper while it cooks. Mix all the ingredients for the albondigas well and shape it into small balls. Fry them in hot oil until they are golden-brown. Pour the sauce over them and cook the balls briefly until they are done. Serve and sprinkle the parsley over them.
